Neighbours rally to help fire victims

Friends and neighbours have started a drive to provide relief to a Lochlin family after an early-morning fire destroyed their home Sunday.

Dysart firefighters were unable to save the home of Bill and Sue Little on Ritchie Falls Road when a fire broke out before 6 a.m. Sunday. Although no one was injured in the blaze, the shock was enough to cause their mother, who was visiting for Christmas, to suffer a mild heart attack. The house, one of the oldest in the Lochlin area, was leveled by the fire and Sue Little estimates that the total loss exceeds $90,000.

The Littles and their children, aged four and seven, have been staying with a relative, Bill Donnery, since the fire. And in the short time since the fire destroyed their home, many friends, neighbours and relatives have been bringing clothing and even Christmas presents to replace those lost.

"Everything has just been super," said Sue. "It makes us realize what our friends and family are really made of."

Although people have been very generous in helping the family through this ordeal, there were many items lost in the fire that just can not be replaced. Things like photographs and gifts from their grandparents and great grandparents were also lost in the fire. "The heirlooms are the things that really hurt," said Sue. "They can't be replaced."

In spite of their troubles, the Littles' business, the Lochlin General Store, will be open as usual. "It's something that's still ours," Sue said of the store. She said it makes her feel a little better to know there is something they own that was not destroyed in the fire.

The family was warned of the fire by a neighbour who spotted the smoke. And by 6:15 firefighters were on the scene battling the flames and sparks that flew high into the air. Fortunately, the wind was blowing away from the barn. Therefore it did not go in the blaze and the animals were spared. Firefighters thought they had the fight beat and left at about 9 a.m., said Sue. However, fire erupted again and the firefighters were called back at about noon. The charred remains of the 90-year-old home were still smouldering on Monday.

While many donations have been made, still much is needed. Anyone interested in helping out is encouraged to bring their items to any of the businesses in Minden where Bill Donnery will pick them up. Donations can also be made at Donnery's home.

Students help hospital fund

The Grade 6 students in Lyn Winan's class at Archie Stouffer Elementary School gave up their usual Christmas gift exchange this year to give a present that is truly in keeping with the spirit of Christmas.

Giving unselfishly is the lesson to be learned from these students, who instead of exchanging gifts among themselves, decided to make one large contribution to the Haliburton Hospital Expansion Fund.

Each student brought in a donation of as much as he or she could afford, and the total gift to the hospital amounted to $104. The gift was delivered to Bill Kulas, Minden's representative on the hospital board, on the final day of school

Kulas explained to the class that the donation would be matched with an equal contribution from the government, which means that the students' contribution to the hospital expansion is more than $200. Kulas also explained to the students what will be involved in the expansion project, and how their money will be used to benefit the community.

Once the students had decided to forego their gift exchange, they were given the option of making a contribution to a variety of charities. They chose the expansion fund because it is a community project.

Darren Warburton of Haliburton proudly carries the Olympic torch on Chemong Road north of Peterborough. He was one of 7000 participants who will move the flame across Canada to the site of the Winter Olympics in Calgary. For a report on Darren's involvement, see story on page 3 and Jack's World on page 5.

Skaters do well at Scugog Frolics

On Saturday, December 12 some of the Minden figure skaters travelled to Lindsay to participate in the Scugog Frolics.

In the Curtain Climbers Division, Tristan Pawluck won this event while his sister Andrea won the Senior C Ladies event.

The Ladies Novice B event Minden had four skaters. In the first flight Jody Reid placed second and Marita Schrader placed fifth. In the second flight Kyla Grexton placed second and in the third flight Kristi Barkwell placed first and Carol Mowat fifth. With the top two from each flight skating off Kristi Barkwell was second, Jody Reid fourth and Kyla Grexton placed sixth.

In the Novice C Ladies event Lisa Ranson came in first in her flight and second in the finals. In the Pre Juvenile B Ladies event Stacey Walker was third in her flight and in the Juvenile B category Robin Flood came in sixth.

Congratulations skaters for a great job - you represented our club well.

Seasons Greetings from everyone involved with the skating club.

Police urge caution for snowmobilers

With the arrival of snow comes many snowmobiles being used for recreation and work around Haliburton County. The Minden OPP Detachment reminds snowmobilers of the following basic requirements:

- Snowmobiles must be registered with and licenced by the Ministry of Transportation when being used anywhere but on the owners' property;
- Snowmobiles must be insured when being operated anywhere but on the owners' property;

- Snowmobile operators and passengers must wear an approved helmet when the machine is in motion;

- Some road restrictions apply as to where persons can ride snowmobiles. For example, snowmobiles are not permitted on the serviced portion of Highways 35, 60, 118 and 121. The serviced portion of a highway includes the roadway and the plowed shoulders.

Owners and operators are liable for all fines under the Motorized Snow Vehicle Act.

Police notes

During the week of December 14 to 20, officers of the Minden OPP Detachment investigated 34 general occurrences and 13 automobile accidents with three minor injuries.

Thefts

Three exterior loud speakers were stolen from Archie Stouffer Elementary School in Minden.

An eight-piece sterling silver cutlery set was stolen from a South Lake Road residence.

Police have recovered a trail bike in the vicinity of Pine Lake.

Car damaged in Lutterworth blaze

Fire caused extensive damage to a late-model car parked at a Lutterworth Estates home early Monday afternoon.

Minden firefighters were called to the home of Bud and Muriel Medley shortly after noon on Monday to douse a fire that had broken out in the engine compartment of their car.

Although the car was parked in a car port attached to the house when it burst into flames, it was towed clear of the building before much damage was done to the house.

No one was in the car when the fire started, but the block heater was said to be plugged in shortly before the fire started.

Hunters fined

On December 15, at Provincial Offences Court in Minden, the following individuals were convicted for offences under the Game and Fish Act.

On November 14, Earl Bull of Minden was found in possession of an antlerless deer without a validation permit. The deer was permanently seized and Mr. Bull was assessed a fine of $500.00.

On October 25, Tom Jarvis of Heathcote, Ontario was found in possession of a Bull Moose without a validation tag. The moose was permanently seized and Mr. Jarvis was assessed a fine of $1,000.

Conservation Officer Barry Walker from the Minden District was the investigating officer.

Home for the Holidays

The Scheffee family of Haliburton received one of the nicest Christmas presents in the county. Jennifer Scheffee arrived home from hospital for the Christmas celebration and is now home to stay. Jennifer suffered two broken legs Halloween night in Haliburton when a vehicle left the roadway and struck the youngster. Although both her legs remain in casts, she is happy to be home with her family once again. Members of the family include, from the left, mother Marg, brother Jeremy and father Dave.

Local youth carries the torch

Describing it as, "A once in a lifetime opportunity," Darren Warburton of Haliburton participated as a runner in the cross-Canada Olympic torch relay December 20. He was one of close to 7000 selected from nearly seven million applicants who wanted to be a part of ceremony preceeding the Winter Olympics in Calgary this February.

"I applied the week the lottery for the positions was announced," Darren recalls. He submitted the application form circulated by Petro-Canada, the sponsors of the torch relay. He knew his chances were slim, and so he was especially pleased when the notification arrived in the mail in November. The letter from the organizing committee offered suggestions on how to prepare for the relay, outlined the section he would be participating in and provided details on where to meet prior to the relay.

Darren, a sixteen year old grade 11 student at HHSS, is already involved in athletics. He had competed in a number of track meets as a runner. When the day of the relay arrived, he was more than ready to take his kilometre.

Accompanied by his parents, Randy and Maureen, sisters Dale and Dionna, aunt Marilyn Rennick, grandmother Marjorie Rennick, uncle Gary, and members of the neighbouring family, the Cowlings, Darren arrived in Peterborough Sunday afternoon.

The runners were given a briefing prior to the relay, at which time they were told how their participation fit in to the overall relay. They also received a complete Olympic Torch Relay track suit, including gloves and toque. The colourful outfit was theirs to keep as a souvenir of their participation.

After the briefing, the runners were transported to a ceremony site in Peterborough where the torch had stopped for a few minutes. There they boarded the van which would carry them in the convoy, dropping off runners at each kilometre to carry the torch for the designated distance.

There were seven runners in Darren's group. They came from communities from throughout eastern Ontario including Coburg, Madoc, Trenton, Peterborough, Omemee and Bancroft.

Darren had competed against one of the participants, Brad Rusaw of Coburg, during a high school track and field meet. The group of runners quickly developed a bond of friendship.

Darren was the fourth to carry the torch after the Peterborough ceremony. He was to run north out of the city along the Chemong Road. "When I got the torch, all I wanted to do was run," he recalls. it was a proud and exciting moment for the high school student.

With the torch held aloft he started down the road, seeing the crowds at the side of the road, but with his mind on the duty at hand. He had made arrangements to pause briefly when he saw his parents, family and friends at the side of the road, but his concentration was so intense that he neglected to stop and they only got a brief glimpse of him as he ran by.

Darren did not find the pace of the run too difficult. The convoy stopped on a number of occasions to let traffic pass, giving him a brief break. Prior to setting out on the course, the seven in his group had made a bet to carry the torch the full distance of their run in one hand. The torch, shaped to resemble the Calgary Tower in Calgary weighs close to six pounds when fully fueled. Darren was able to carry the emblem in one hand for the full distance although he admits the final 100 metres, the weight was starting to tell on his arm.

It was an exhilarating experience for the young athlete. "I felt I was a small part of the Olympics," he said. "I am proud to have taken part in the relay."

In addition to the track suit, Darren has received a certificate attesting to his participation in the relay.

Acid rain report

The following report on precipitation is based on information gathered at the Ministry of Environment Acid Rain Testing Station in Dorset and compiled by Environment Canada.

There were 6 precipitation events during the week of December 13 - 19:

December 13: 5 mm mixed rain and snow, 4.8 pH, from Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan.

December 14: 1 cm snow, pH 4.4 from Wisconsin and Michigan.

December 15: 25 cm snow, 4.5 pH, from Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York and eastern Ontario.

December 16: 1 cm snow, 4.4 pH, from northwestern Quebec and central Ontario.

December 18: 3 cm snow, 4.1 pH, from Wisconsin, Michigan and southern Ontario.

December 19: 7 cm snow, 4.6 pH from Kentucky, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York.

There were 5 precipitation events during the week of December 6 - 12:

December 8 - 6 mm rain, pH 4.0 air path from Tennessee, Kentucky, Indiana, Ohio and southern Ontario.

December 9: 14 mm rain pH 4.2 - Tennessee, Kentucky, Ohio, southern Ontario.

December 10: 2 mm rain, pH 4.1 - Lake Superior and Lake Huron.

December 11: 5 cm snow pH 4.1 - Ohio to southern Ontario.

December 12: 2 cm snow pH 4.6 - Wisconsin, Michigan and southern Ontario.

Environmental damage is usually observed in sensitive areas regularly receiving precipitation with pH less than 4.7. Readings of 4.0 pH or less are considered dangerous. The lower the reading, the more acidic the precipitation.

Resolve

There is no doubt this has been one of the most prosperous years in recent memory in the Haliburton Highlands. Judging by the increased activity in almost all business sectors, it's been a year of growth and progress, which bodes well for the year ahead. In particular the winter tourist season appears to have found its "legs" and has emerged as an important factor in the over-all economic well being of the Highlands.

While we enjoy the benefits of a buoyant economy it would do us all well to remember those in our community and beyond who have not benefitted from the growth. The homeless, hungry, disadvantaged and oppressed still outnumber those of us for whom these concerns are distant. Let us resolve to express our concern for those less fortunate throughout the year rather than letting it become merely an annual emotional reaction to the Christmas season.

Gull Lake bluffs

Agent 47, American Operations and The Old Man

by Arthur Black

The Old Man hunkered menacingly, like a CFL lineman, looming over the polished white pine expanse of his desktop. His craggy head with the bulldog jaws and the tank turret eyes was backlit by a cone of light that splashed out from the lamp behind him, across the desk and into the pale, thin face of Agent 47, standing stiffly at attention. Agent 47 didn't look like the second most powerful man in all of Canadian Intelligence, but then nobody looked like anything when they were standing in front of The Old Man's desk.

"Well, Forty-seven," the Old Man rumbled, "out with it. Start with our American Operations."

Agent Forty-seven cleared his throat, pinched the side seams of his trousers between clammy thumbs and forefingers and began:

"Well sir, as you know, the entire department is still reeling from the loss of Lorne Greene. He was one of our most highly placed operatives - a virtual Father Figure for Americans. We regard his demise as a real blow to the Operation."

The Old Man waved a huge ham hock of a hand impatiently. Forty-seven knew what that meant: Get on with it.

"W-w-we also incurred a temporary setback with the Mansbridge Offensive. Our CBS Management mole went sour when we tried to pay him off in Loon dollars, but on the whole, keeping Mansbridge in Canada may turn out to be a bonus. It frees up Nash for future operations."

"Then of course we still have the usual operatives in place. Keith Morrison, Peter Jennings, Peter Kent, Morley Safer, on the hard news front. In the Entertainment Department, Alex Trebek, Monte Hall, Art Linkletter - undercover Canucks all ... all doing their job. When you factor in all the Canadians ensconced in Hollywood - the John Candys, the Dan Aykroyds, the Gilda Radners and the Howie Mandels not to mention the Arthur Haileys, the Joni Mitchells, the Neil Youngs, the Lenoard Cohens and Michael J. Foxes - it amounts to a virtual stranglehold on the American communications industry."

The Old Man sat immovable, his laser eyes glaring over the top of his reading glasses. Forty-seven could feel the heat of that gaze focused right on his adam's apple. He cleared his throat, swallowed and plunged on:

"Then there's our British field of operation - it still goes well. Not as well as in our heyday of course, when we had old Max - Lord Beaverbrook - pulling the strings and calling the tune on Fleet Street. But The Sunday Times and The Times of London still belong to the estate of a poor lad from Sudbury, as do a raft of British dailies, not to mention TV and radio sta..." the Old Man cut Agent 47 off with a wave and a growl. "Dammit man, I know who our operatives in the field are and what we control. What I want to know is - how does the enemy feel about us? Is our cover holding?"

"Couldn't be better, sir" replied Agent 47 briskly. "Overall, the rest of the world continues to regard Canada as a nation of polite but boring drones - when they regard us at all."

"The Yanks have just published a book called Chronicle of The 20th Century". In the Canadian section, it spells our capital "Ottawa" and leaves Toronto and Montreal right off the map."

Agent 47 wasn't positive, but he thought he detected just the shimmer of a smirk flickering across The Old Man's face.

"Even better news from the British theatre, sir, - The Economist magazine has declared Canada to be one of the world's most boring places - ranks us with Switzerland, New Zealand and ... East Germany.

There was no doubt of it now, The Old Man was grinning. Grinning! Wait'll they heard about this back at HQ!

The Old Man massaged his massive jaw. "Ott-owa, eh? God, that's good. And the Brits - that bangers and mash, Blackpool-by-the-sea, bowler-and-brolly, stiff upper lip island of dead fish has the nerve to call us boring? Haw!"

Agent 47 had never seen - never heard of - The Old Man being so animated. A feeling of irrepressible glee skittered up from the iceball in 47's belly and nested in his throat. The Old Man's mirth passed as suddenly as it sprang up. He fixed the Agent with a steely glare and rumbled:

"Good work, Forty-seven, but the battle is far from over. I want to see more Indian maidens, lumberjacks and singing mounties at every border crossing. I want every film festival in the world to be flooded with NFB shorts about loons and Rocky Mountain sunsets and majestic moose.

"Remember the purpose of the operation, Forty-seven: To Keep Canada Secret. As long as the rest of the world thinks Canada is boring, we can keep Canada for Canadians. We all must do our part, Forty-seven. That includes you. And me. Dismissed!"

There was a low murmuring noise from behind The Old Man and it was growing louder. Agent Forty-seven could distinctly hear an organ, prolonged cheers, and a suggestion of the tune O Canada. Forty-seven stood rigidly at attention as The Old Man pushed himself up from the desk, adjusted a hideous green and salmon striped tie, patted his orange hair into place and lumbered through the velvet curtain toward the noise inside.

Ah, thought Operative 47, not for the first time... if only Canadians could know the real Harold Ballard.

On the road to Calgary

The Sunday prior to Christmas, I found myself on the way to Peterborough, camera in hand, to cover Darren Warburton's participation in the Olympic Torch Relay. Darren had been selected one of 7000 Canadians, from over seven million who applied, to carry the flame across Canada to the site of the 1988 Winter Olympics in Calgary. A report on Darren's involvement appears elsewhere in this newspaper. What follows are some personal observations.

* * *

It was a typical December afternoon, as I motored south on 121 toward the Emily Park Road and Highway 7 to Peterborough. A mixture of wet snow and rain splatted on the windshield, the low clouds added to the speed of the approaching dusk. It was the sort of Sunday afternoon made for stretching out on the couch with a good book, or no book at all, while some logs crackle gently in the hearth.

The Torch Relay H.Q. was the Peterborough Holiday Inn. The place was crawling with svelt looking athletic types in trim, brightly coloured track suits. Vans and buses bearing the relay team insignia and numbered licence plates that read, 'Torch 17' buzzed in and out of the parking lot.

After identifying myself, I was taken to 'Command', a large double room near the end of a long hallway. There, behind a desk littered with half filled coffee cups, the remnants of several box lunches, mountains of computer print-outs and a variety of maps, was the Commander. Behind him, a bank of portable two-way radios, connected in a spaghetti-like maze of cords, lined the wall. An almost constant stream of chatter rattled from the speakers as various elements of the torch relay team ensured the object of their attention moved effortlessly across the country.

The scene resembled a military operation. Each of the 69 personnel and 27 vehicles involved in the exercise moved as a co-ordinated unit, all aware of the location of the others involved and their relation to the central piece of this drama, the torch.

Like any well-organized campaign, the juggernaut rolls on because everyone knows his responsibility. The commander appeared to have little to do, although I sense that as he is talking to me, he is monitoring the radio traffic, watching the clock and plotting in his mind the exact location of the torch.

* * *

Having cleared command, I am picked up by Torch 21, the van used to transport media back and forth to the relay convoy. I find myself in the company of two enthusiastic hosts. Marie is from Ottawa. Roger is from Toronto. Both are Petro-Canada employees who have volunteered to be a part of the torch relay team. Marie is just completing her week-long stint as driver of the press-relay van. Roger is becoming familiar with his responsibilities that don't begin officially until the next morning.

The pride these people express about being involved in the torch relay and part of the sponsoring company, Petro-Canada, is almost tangible. Marie talks about the camaraderie that has grown up among the teammates over the past week ... the bone weariness that comes with a week of five o'clock wake up calls and days that don't end until 10 p.m. ... the mental exhaustion of manoeuvring a van through unfamiliar streets while trying to make sense out of a map, responding to calls on the radio answering the questions of passengers and doing her part to keep the torch on time. It was obvious she loved every minute of her involvement and, as she recounted the week's hectic schedule, it whetted Roger's anticipation for the week ahead. He is from the Petro-Canada laboratory in Toronto and he proudly relates how a fellow lab technician developed the special fuel that keeps the flame alit.

Delivered to the Peterborough 'C' site (C on the day's roster stands for Ceremony), I stand with hundreds of spectators in the mud and slush awaiting the arrival of the flame. On the portable stage, which has been unfolded from the side of one of the 27 vehicles travelling with the torch across the country, a master of ceremonies keeps the crowd entertained while the Olympic mascots circulate through the audience. A few more speeches and local dignitaries help to pass the time, but it is obvious by the divided attention of the crowd, that everyone is more interested in what's happening on a nearby roadway, the street that will see the arrival of the torch.

The crowd is a cross-section of any community - young, old, a few in wheel chairs have braved the quagmire, children are muffled in snow suits against the damp winter chill. Many are holding the small red plastic torch replicas, sold by the Lions Club wherever the relay goes. With the candles lit and shielded from the wind, these small beacons dot the hillside like fireflies.

Miraculously, as the speeches end, the torch arrives, greeted by loud and enthusiastic cheering from those assembled. There will be a few more speeches as the torch pauses briefly, less than ten minutes, and then moves back to its cross-country trek. I don't wait for the speakers to begin, but take my place on the press van in the torch relay convoy.

* * *

The convoy that accompanies the flame wherever it is on the road consists of eight vehicles. Of course, there are many other support cars and trucks which constantly circle around the torch convoy, but these eight form the nucleus while the torch is in motion.

jack's world

by editor & publisher Jack Brezina

At the head of the group is the police escort - Peterborough City Police and the OPP were involved the evening I was there. Next is the lead motorhome. It carries all the fresh runners, individuals chosen from across Canada to carry the torch. As each change-over point is reached, a runner steps down from the motorhome and waits at the curb for the torch to reach him or her, when the actual transfer takes place. While the convoy halted for the ceremonies in Peterborough, a fresh contingent of runners, including Darren Warburton of Haliburton, was moved into place for the next leg of the run.

The next vehicle carries the back-up flame. Encased in a plastic box strapped to the trunk hood of the car, two miner's lamps glow, each carrying a flame lit from the original ignited in Greece. If the torch should go out, and this happened on a number of occasions on Sunday evening as gusty winds snuffed the flame, it is immediately rekindled from the lamps.

Next in line is the press van, a large square truck which is completely open at the rear. From this moveable stand I had an unobstructed view of the runners as they carried the torch. It was this vantage point which provided the excellent shots seen on television and in newspapers.

Then comes the torch, held aloft by one of the Canadians chosen to participate in the relay. The torch bearer is accompanied by a number of other runners, members of the relay team, on hand to provide assistance or to help control some of the more enthusiastic spectators who crowd onto the street.

Following the runners in the mobile command post, controlling the speed of the other vehicles, based on the pace set by the runner or on traffic conditions, co-ordinating the change of runners and announcing the name of the current torch bearer to the spectators.

The command vehicle is followed by a second motorhome which picks up the runners after they have completed their distance and handed over the torch to the next runner. As each runner completes his or her stint, he joins his teammates in the van to relax and share the excitement of their participation.

An ambulance follows this vehicle, just in case emergency medical services are needed for any of the participants.

Another police escort, with lights flashing marks the end of the convoy.

As I mentioned, the press van offered a perfect vantage point from which to watch the runners. It also gave a front row seat on the passing parade of spectators which lined the route.

Darren was to be the fourth runner following the Peterborough ceremony, so I had lots of time to observe the crowd as they stood at the side of the road and cheered. Time and again, I was moved to tears as I saw proud Canadians greet the runner and torch with flags, large and small, as parents eagerly pointed out the passing flame to youngsters, as an especially loud chorus of cheers would erupt from family members, friends and neighbours bursting with pride as the runner they knew came into view holding the flame aloft.

Darren began his run on the outskirts of Peterborough. It wasn't long before the street lights were gone and the number of homes had dwindled. Amazingly, the edge of the highway was still crowded with parked cars and cheering Canadians, individuals and families who had stood for an hour or more in the cold and the dark to catch a brief glimpse of the runner, the torch and the flame.

From my vantage point I could also watch the runners - proud and erect, a broad grin creasing their faces, thrilled to be a part of the relay. Their faces shone with the excitement that must reflect the feelings of the athletes who compete at the Olympics.

* * *

Shortly after Darren completed his run, Torch 21 retrieved me from the side of the road and I was returned to my car in downtown Peterborough. I left the city on the same route the torch had taken and soon, in the distance, I could see the flashing lights of the convoy. It had stopped briefly at the top of one of those monstrous hills between Peterborough and Omeme - the torch had blown out again - but no doubt the runner was glad for the break as well.

As I drove ahead of the convoy now, once again I could see small groups of people waiting in the dark at the end of long country driveways and at intersections, waiting for the flame to arrive. Some were gathered around small bonfires, others held the plastic torches, their tiny flames glowing in the dark, here and there a Canadian flag fluttered in the inky night.

As I approached the Emily Park turn-off, I knew I couldn't abandon the flame ... not just yet. I pulled my vehicle onto the shoulder of the road and joined the crowd of others waiting in the chilly night for the flame to pass. It took about a half an hour for the convoy to reach the intersection, and when it did the highway was lined with cheering spectators, myself included, glad to catch another glimpse of the torch and in a small way, share in the spirit of the flame.

Canada's Free Trade Agreement

by Bill Scott, M.P.

During the past two months, many myths and distortions have been raised about the implications of the Free Trade Agreement (FTA) on a variety of issues. The purpose of this column is to highlight the specific Articles of the text which address these concerns.

Service Industries: Article 1402 makes it clear that existing laws and regulations governing services remain untouched. The agreement relates to future laws and regulations.

Social Programs: The Services Annex covered in the agreement exclude, among others, government-provided services, and social services such as child care and medical services. Articles 301, 304 and 406 outline rules of origin and customs enforcement procedures which will ensure that third world goods will not enter Canada as American goods or vice versa. Under GATT rules, generally available social programs are not countervailable. Under both the GATT and Chapter Five of the FTA, both countries can impose a sales tax to raise revenue to fund government programs, provided it does not discriminate against imported goods. The Federal and Provincial governments have long imposed sales taxes which allowed Canada to finance a wide array of social services while maintaining competitive corporate and personal tax systems. The preamble clearly states Canada's ability to take measures to defend the public welfare, for example unemployment insurance.

Regional Development: Under the GATT, subsidies are recognized as legitimate ways to promote regional development, but countries should not use subsidies which injure other countries. Subsidies aren't illegal. Only subsidies that cause injury. Under existing U.S. and Canadian law, subsidies are only countervailable by the importing nation if they are not generally available, and if the subsidized product materially injures a similar good in the importing country. Only a fraction of Canadian regional development subsidies have ever been challenged as countervailable in the United States. Only a fraction of these have been found by U.S. authorities to have caused injury to U.S. competitors; and since 1980, no countervailing duty on a regional development subsidy has exceeded 1 per cent of the export price. The existing threat of U.S. countervail on regional development subsidies is therefore remote, and the impact negligible.

Investment: Articles 1602 and 1607 outline Canada's right to review significant direct acquisition proposals. 75 per cent of the assets that are currently reviewable by Investment Canada will remain reviewable after the transition period. Article 1603 recognizes Canada's continuing right to negotiate product mandate, research and development, and technology transfer requirements with prospective investors. Article 1607 grandfathers all existing foreign investment restrictions. Article 1602 recognizes the ability of the Competition Tribunal to review anti-competitive mergers and acquisitions.

Trucking: The Services Annex does not include transportation services. Like culture and social programs, the trucking industry is not affected by this agreement.

Apparel and Textiles: American fears of our highly competitive clothing manufacturers caused the United States to demand a ceiling on the export growth potential of Canadian apparel made from third country fabrics. A quota on such Canadian apparel exports has been set at a level six times above current trade levels, allowing Canadian apparel manufacturers to continue to increase their exports, while limiting American fears that Canadian imports will wipe out the U.S. industry. A similar quota has been set for Canadian textiles made with foreign yarn.

Multilateral Negotiations: The preamble of the FTA clearly states Canada's commitment to the multilateral trading system and the growth of world trade. Chapter One sets out that the FTA is consistent with GATT Article XXIV - the Article which provides the framework for negotiating free trade agreements. Part Two of the FTA builds on previous commitments made in the GATT, various GATT codes on standards, procurement, subsidies etc., the Auto Pact and the existing Harmonized Commodity Description and Coding System. Both countries retain their existing GATT rights and obligations unless otherwise stated. Chapter Five incorporates the fundamental national treatment obligation of the GATT into the FTA.

Binding Dispute Settlement: Article 1904 sets up a unique bilateral panel with binding powers of review of anti-dumping or countervailing duty determinations. Article 1103 implements compulsory binding arbitration for disputes arising from the interpretation and application of the emergency safeguard provisions. Article 1806 sets out that all other disputes arising from the FTA can be subject to binding arbitration, if mutually agreed. Article 1907 provides that the two governments will work toward a new regime to address problems of dumping and subsidization to come into effect no later than at the end of the seventh year.

The Auto Pact: The Auto Pact is untouched. The production safeguards remain creating a $300 million/year incentive for companies like General Motors, Chrysler and Ford to exceed minimum production levels in Canada. Chapter 4 of the FTA secures duty-free access for Canadian products into the U.S. market. Annex 301.2 makes it possible for Asian producers to export Canadian-assembled cars duty-free into the United States if they meet a strict 50 per cent North American Content standard. Chapter 10 recognizes Canada's obligation to honour its commitments to Asian car-makers locating in Canada. Article 1003 provides for free trade in used vehicles by 1993.

Times still lead the league

There were no upsets in Men's league hockey action last Monday as the top three teams held onto the positions in the standings.

Floyd Hall Insurance defended their second-place position in the standings by downing fifth-place Vasey Insurance 10-3 in the opening game. Hartwick Construction continued its winning streak by defeating the Rockcliffe 14-11, while The Times held onto the league lead by edging Home Hardware 13-5.

Halls 10, Vasey 3

Halls' Kim Collis led his team to victory with four goals as they handily defeated Vasey in the first game of the night. The win maintains Halls' second-place position in the standings after they dropped from the lead a week earlier with their loss to Hartwick.

Vasey had their hands full with this strong Halls club as they fell behind 3-0 after one period and 5-3 after two. Jerry Campbell, Kevin Hamilton and Ed Gibbons did the scoring for Vasey.

Other goal scorers for Halls were Tom Haley (2), Barry Boice (2), Jason Stamp and Greg Anderson.

Hartwick 14, Rockcliffe 11

Despite an outstanding performance by Lawrence Lougheed who scored six times last Monday, the Rockcliffe team was not able to stop Hartwick's winning streak. Hartwick edged the Rockcliffe 14-11 to extend their streak to six straight wins.

Dave Hartwick led his team to the win with four goals, while Brian Shaw, Bart Hilhorst and Larry Sawyer each added two. Rick Salmon, Murray Beetlestone, Jim Keetch and Ewen Asbel each scored once.

Other goal scorers for the Rockcliffe were Barry Shaw (2), John Fedeski, John McGivern, and Jim Winn.

Times 13, Home 5

The league leading Times team managed to hold its challengers at bay by downing Home Hardware 13-5 in the final game at the Minden rink last Monday.

As usual, Home Hardware put in a strong showing, but came out on the short end of the score, failing to notch the win that would bump them out of the basement.

Scott Hamilton did most of the scoring for Home, popping four past Times goalie Rob Crowe. Gary Nelson added the fifth goal to Home Hardware's tally.

Jeff Howe paved the way for The Times win with five goals, while Tim Veniza earned a hat-trick and Sid MacKeigan scored twice. John McAdam and Andy Campbell each scored once for The Times.

More men's league action was scheduled for last night (Monday) with Hartwick taking on Home, The Times meeting Halls and the Rockcliffe challenging Vasey.

Chantalle McKnight of Minden was one of several hundred youths nominated for a Junior Citizen of the Year award last year. Her nomination, sponsored by The Times, was offered in recognition of her volunteer work at Hyland Crest Home for senior citizens. Chantalle was not one of the 12 finalists chosen by the selection committee, but she did receive this certificate noting that she was nominated for the honour. Individuals who wish to nominate youths between six and 18 years of age for this honour can contact The Times for more details.

COUNTY OF HALIBURTON ROAD DEPARTMENT SNOW REMOVAL

The Highway Traffic Act RSO 1980, C198 - S147, Revised 1982 states "No person shall park or stand a vehicle on a highway to interfere with the clearing of snow". A constable may have the vehicle removed from the roadway and stored at the owners' expense.

Section 157 states "No person shall deposit snow or ice on a roadway without permission in writing from the road authority responsible for maintenance of the road". The penalty on conviction is a fine of not more than $50.00.

The co-operation of all motorists in these matters would be appreciated for efficient winter maintenance of County Roads and the safety of others.

Looking for a winner

Minden merchant Ted Carson reaches deep into the draw box in search for the winner of the Hometown Christmas grand prize of $300. When Ted brought out the single ticket, the name on the ballot was that of Leitha Grexton of Minden. She received her prize December 24, just in time for Christmas.

PUBLISHER'S NOTE: The purpose of the Hometown Christmas promotion is to encourage individuals to shop in their hometown first. Throughout the five weeks during which the draws were being held, I was asked if it was appropriate for business owners and their staff to take part in the draws by completing a ballot. My answer has always been that to exclude these individuals from taking part would mean a large segment of the community would be unable to share in the "rewards" this promotion created for those who made an effort to shop in their hometowns. The only caution I suggested was that business owners and their staff not complete ballots in their own stores, but feel free to take advantage of the promotion when shopping in other stores in our communities. Leitha Grexton is the owner of Leitha's Sweets and Treats, one of the businesses participating in the Hometown Christmas promotion. When she was told of her win, she was both surprised and somewhat reluctant to accept the prize. She was surprised because she did not recall filling out a ballot during the promotion. In fact, she had made a purchase at Minden Satellite Services and the owners of that business had filled in an entry ballot in her name. Having confirmed this, I saw no reason why Leitha should not receive the prize and insisted that she accept the cheque for $300. The fact that she, or anyone else who owns a business in the community, whether they are taking part in the promotion or not, should not exclude them, or their staff from participating in and winning any of the prizes offered. I salute everyone who made an effort to support our community by shopping their hometown first.

Eakins announces new municipal grants

The Honourable John Eakins, Minister of Municipal Affairs, has announced a 5.7 per cent increase in provincial funding for municipalities under the 1988 Unconditional Grants program.

Unconditional grants in 1988 will total nearly $870 million.

Unconditional grants are payments made by the Ministry of Municipal Affairs to municipalities to help offset each municipality's general operating costs. The funds are used at the discretion of each municipal council.

These payments are in addition to those made by other provincial ministries for specific services such as roads, transit, sanitary sewers, libraries and social services. The total of all provincial transfers to municipalities in 1988 will exceed $4 billion.

This year's increase in the unconditional grants is almost a full percentage point higher than the 1987 increase of 4.9 per cent.

"The increased funding will enable municipalities to cope with normal cost increases while holding mill rate increases to modest levels," Mr. Eakins said.

The minister said he was making the announcement as early as possible, so municipalities could plan next year's budgets in an orderly manner.

Mr. Eakins said he has made some adjustments to the 1988 program which will benefit all municipalities in the province.

These include improving the grant increases that municipalities receive through the resource equalization grant. In addition, a large number of municipalities that receive the general support grant and northern support grant will receive improved funding.

The program's revenue guarantee feature will also be continued in 1988. This feature assures each municipality an increase over the previous year's grants. For 1988, the lowest grant increase any Ontario municipality will receive will be two per cent.

Complete details of the 1988 program will be forwarded to all municipalities during the next few days.

Conservation Land Act

An Act to encourage conservation of privately-owned, significant conservation and heritage lands has been introduced by Ontario Natural Resources Minister Vincent Kerrio.

"The Conservation Land Act is an indication of this province's commitment to preserving natural heritage sites in Ontario," Mr. Kerrio told the Legislature.

The Conservation Land Act paves the way for a new program that will enable owners of recognized conservation lands to recover property taxes if they agree to maintain the special features of their lands.

"The kinds of lands I propose to include are Class 1, 2 and 3 wetlands, provincially-significant areas of natural and scientific interest, natural areas within the Niagara Escarpment area, non-revenue producing land owned by conservation authorities, and other land owned by non-profit organizations," Mr. Kerrio said.

Under the program, owners of properties that qualify will be eligible for 100 per cent tax rebates.

Mr. Kerrio said the program would provide tax incentives similar to those now claimed by owners of agricultural or managed forest lands.

"By offering this kind of material support to the owners of conservation lands, we are telling them that we recognize the important role they play as stewards of these lands," Mr. Kerrio said.

Details of the proposed program will be announced early in the new year, and tax rebates will apply to taxes paid from January 1, 1987.

Guild news

by Shirley Hodgson

On Saturday afternoon at the Rails' End Gallery there was a number of exciting things happening. The Guild Choir was in great form and they sang some lovely Christmas songs. This was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone in attendance.

The winning tickets were drawn for the two nice shawls which was sponsored by the Spinners and Weavers. The lucky winners were from the Minden area (there will be more news about this next week).

The Committee members of the Haliburton Guild of Fine Arts are happy to announce the second vice president of the Guild - Alex McLeod - has decided to be the Artistic Director of the Annual Summer Sale. With the help of his wife I'm sure this venture will prove to be successful.

The next newsletter publication will be January 19, 1988. All members are encouraged to write and express their ideas, suggestions, etc.

December 22 the Rails' End Gallery will be closed for the Christmas holidays but it will reopen on January 5.

Now - before I leave I have a little prayer for Christmas -

"Give us the faith of innocent children, that we may look forward with hope in our hearts, to the dawn of happy tomorrows.

Give us faith in ourselves and faith in our fellow man ... then the treasures and beauties of life that make man happy will spring from an inexhaustible source.

At Christmas, when the hearts of the world swell in joyous celebration, let us cast aside the pretense of sturdy men and live if only for a day, in the hope and joy we knew as children."

senior league

by Pearl Lyle

Hello Readers, Ho! Ho! will soon be here once more with his cheerful message to all. Our service Sunday evening was in charge of Rev. and Mrs. Burgess and the organist was Maron Rose. On Tuesday morning we were fortunate to have Rev. Moll from Minden United Church.

The grade 5 pupils of Archie Stouffer School came one evening with teachers Kathy Rogers and Dennis Baker. They sang "Jingle Bells," "Christmas Love," "Mary's Lullaby," and "Do You Hear What I Hear?" Then a duet, "Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen" by Carol Mowat and Cassie Weywick. The programme ended with "Rudolph" and "Away In A Manger." It was certainly enjoyed by everyone. Thank you, young folks, come again.

The Auxiliary put on our Thursday afternoon lunch as well as other goodies. They served us delicious ice cream and real Christmas cake. We are glad to express sincere thanks to Hazel Gregory of Carnarvon for the gift of a great number of handmade afghans for the use of the Residents. They are lovely and are certainly put to use. Thank you very much from one and all. Also we would like to extend a hearty vote of thanks to the Gospel Church of Minden for the two evenings they spent here entertaining us with beautiful carol singing. We appreciate that very much.

I had my sister Cora Upton and their son Jim of Bracebridge to see me on Saturday. Also my daughter Ann Gordon and her friend Jean Montgomery from Four Mile Lake.

There were two ladies from Kinmount Senior Citizens' and two from the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Legion came to bring cards and gifts to we who are from Kinmount in here. They are: Mr. Simpson, Mary O'Tolle, Mrs. Schultz and me. A sincere thank you from us to you. I hope I didn't miss any.

Guests for Mable Buttery were Gertie Andrews from Wasaga Beach, Clara Francis and daughter and Wilfred Ackerblade of Minden called.

Mr. Bert Harrison had his daughter and her husband in to see him on Saturday.

It's nice to see Joe Gauthier able to be back in the diningroom.

Winnie Barnum's grandson came on Saturday afternoon and took her to her niece's wedding in Haliburton.

Merry Christmas, everyone.

"It's only legend, but how true it is that the real meaning of Christmas is in giving, sharing and caring."

Did you know?

If you have reached 65 years of age and lived in Ontario for one full year, the Ontario Health Insurance Plan is provided for you without charge. But you must apply.

If your premiums are paid through your place of employment, advise your employer of your approaching 65th birthday. Your employer will issue a Certificate of Payment (Form 104) which you must complete and forward to OHIP.

If you are eligible to receive an Old Age Security pension, you will automatically receive an Ontario Seniors Card upon applying for your pension. This will enable you to purchase selected prescription drugs without charge.

Your card should arrive the month after you receive your first Old Age Security cheque.

If you are 65 and not eligible to receive OAS but have lived in Ontario for the past 12 months, you may make application to receive a Privilege Card. Your spouse and dependents are not covered by your card.

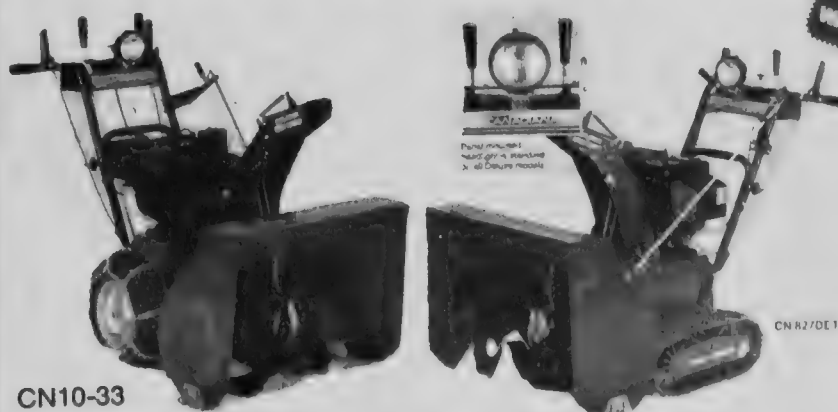

For further information regarding OHIP or if you need an application, contact the Haliburton County Information Centre located in the Drag River Municipal Building, Maple Ave., Haliburton, open daily 10:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m. or call 457-2733. Our Minden centre is open every Tuesday from 10:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m. or call 286-4100. The centre will be closed for the Christmas holiday December 24 - 28

Janis Guthy of Haliburton will be leading low impact aerobics classes, and seniors' exercise classes on Tuesday and Thursday evenings at Archie Stouffer Elementary School. The classes, which begin on January 5, are being run on a non-profit basis, although there is a small charge to cover expenses. Registration information can be obtained from the Haliburton Chiropractic Clinic.

Tips for holiday time

The holiday season. For most of us, it's a magic time, a time to create fond memories with family and friends. But if you have a physical disability, the holidays can be a time that are hectic, exhausting and difficult, reports The Arthritis Society.

There are many ways, however, that people with physical limitations can deal effectively with the special strains of a holiday schedule. The key is to adapt the rigors of the season to your own limitations and capabilities.

For example, when giving a party, plan and prepare for the event as far in advance as possible. Don't feel you have to handle all the details yourself. Delegate! Count on your family and friends for help right from the beginning. This is not only good for your health, it achieves the true holiday spirit of sharing and togetherness.

Remember that the party doesn't need to be complicated. Informal entertaining is very much accepted, and can make things much easier on you. For example, have food available buffet-style. Use sturdy paper plates and plastic utensils to simplify serving and clean-up. Or, have a pot-luck dinner. You provide the main dish, while the guests bring an array of food to round out the menu.

Planning and pacing your activities can help in other aspects of holiday festivities. Simplify Christmas shopping by spacing your trips over a period of weeks or months. Shop early in the season or during non-peak hours, to avoid the crowds. Or, order your gifts by phone and mail from stores that deliver.

Finally - and most important of all - get the right amount of rest to be your festive best this holiday season. On the day of a party or other important event, set aside a rest period to lie down, relax and prepare your body.

The holiday season. Plan for it properly and you'll enjoy it more than ever, says The Arthritis Society. For more information about making life easier for people with arthritis, contact your local representative - Mrs., Helen Burton at 286-2722.

CARD OF THANKS

Again this year, the Minden Lioness wish to express their sincere thanks to Tops 'N Trends, Commander Blvd., Scarborough for their generous donation of clothing to the Christmas parcels distributed by the County of Haliburton and Children's Aid.

Minden Lioness Club

The family of the late Cecil Burk would like to thank all their relatives and friends for visits and cards while Dad was a patient in the Minden and Peterborough Hospitals, also thanks for the cards, prayers, floral tributes, food, messages of sympathy and donations of money. Special thanks to Dr. Dawson and staff, Minden Hospital staff, ambulance drivers, Stanhope Fire Department staff, Peterborough Hospital staff, The Gordon Monk Funeral Home, ladies of Lochlin U.C.W. and Rev. Crighton for his comforting words. May God bless you all.

I would like to thank my family and friends for all the flowers and cards during my stay in hospital.

Dorothy Bull

we love our children DRIVE CAREFULLY!

CARD OF THANKS

DIXIE LEE Minden and Haliburton would like to thank all the people who contributed gifts to our "Toy Drive". We collected over 50 gifts for needy children in Haliburton County. Many thanks to the 4C's in Haliburton for distributing them.

IN MEMORIAM

LINDSAY: In loving memory of our dear husband and father, William Lindsay, who passed away December 16, 1980.

A leaf in the book of memory
Is gently turned today.

Always remembered, wife Florence, children Ross, Sharon and Kathryn and all the grandchildren.

McELWAIN: In memory of Robert McElwain who passed away December 20, 1974.

We miss you so, in many ways,
We miss things you used to say.
And when old times, we do recall,
It's then we miss you most of all.

Ever remembered by wife, family and grandchildren.
